How AI Builder credits work

AEserver AI Builder · https://www.aeserver.com/support/ai-builder-credits/

Credits are what AI Builder uses each time the AI builds or changes something on your site. This article explains how many you get, how to check what is left and how to make them go further.

Credits on each plan

Plan	Credits	When they are given
Free	500,000	Once, when you sign up. They must be used within 30 days.
Maker	1,000,000	Every month, on yearly and monthly billing
Creator	2,000,000	Every month, on yearly and monthly billing

NoteMonthly credits do not carry over. Any credits you have not used by the time your credits renew are not added to the next month.

What uses credits

Every message the AI works on uses credits. How many depends on:

- The size of the change. A new page with a booking form uses more than changing a colour.
- The length of the conversation. The AI reads your project and chat each time.
- The AI model. Faster models use fewer credits; models for complex work use more. The default suits most changes.
- Images the AI creates. Generating photos and illustrations uses far more credits than text or layout changes. Uploading your own photos saves credits.

Editing text and images yourself by clicking on them in the preview uses no credits. The one exception is Ask AI on a piece of text or an image, which shows its price before you run it.

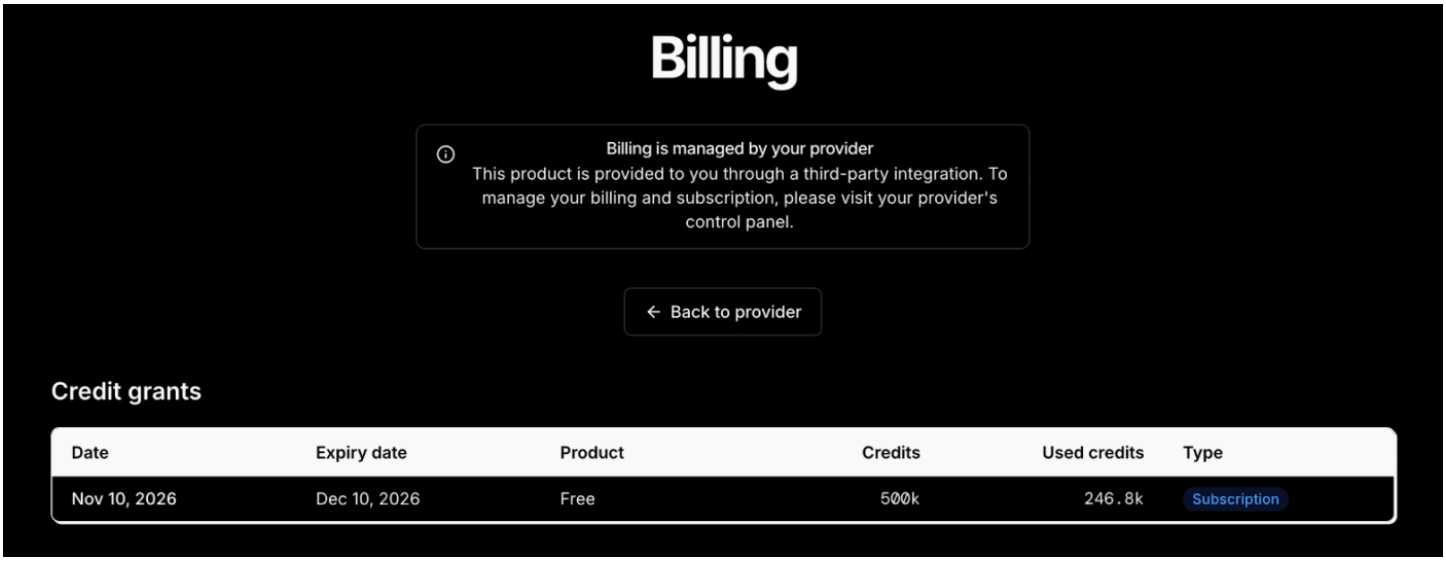

Checking your balance

In the builder

- Your remaining credits are shown in the message box, on the right (for example 0.3M for about 300,000).
- Your account menu (your initials, top right) > Settings > Usage & Limits shows credits used and still available in the current month, with a breakdown by type of work and by chat.
- Your account menu > Billing lists each credit grant with its date, expiry date and how much of it you have used.

Usage & Limits shows what you have used and what is left, split by type of work and by chat.

The Billing page lists each credit grant. Back to provider returns you to your AEserver client area.

In your AEserver client area

Your AI Builder service page shows your plan and its credits. On the Free plan it also shows the date your free credits end.

NoteBilling itself is handled by AEserver. The Back to provider button on the builder's Billing page brings you back to your client area.

Making your credits go further

- Send one clear change per message rather than a long list.
- Be specific about what is wrong, so the AI fixes it first time.
- Use Plan mode for bigger features, so you can correct the approach before any building starts.
- Make text and photo changes yourself in the preview.
- See Writing a great prompt for AI Builder for examples.

Running low or out of credits

On the Free plan

Free credits end after 30 days, or sooner if you use them all. We email you 7 days and 1 day before they end. To keep building, upgrade to Maker or Creator from the same service: you carry on in the same project, and the new plan's credits apply as soon as the invoice is paid.

On Maker or Creator

You get fresh credits every month. If you need more before then, move up to Creator; the change applies straight away.

Upgrade or change your AI Builder plan

Credits used by a response that failed

If the AI clearly failed (for example it stopped part way or broke something it was not asked to touch), open the menu on that response, choose Report issue and then Request a credit review if it is offered. The review usually takes about a minute and can return the credits.

If the option is not there or you disagree with the result, contact our support team with the link to your chat.
